The idea

➡ A web application that can be installed on your system

• Relies on browser local storage to store the frontend (and checks for update with the server)

• Relies on Web-Workers for caching and communication